Introduction

These are the acceptance criteria given by a BA. We require you, as a tester, to set up a framework and get these tests automated on the Sky website. Please see the tests below and automate them using JavaScript or TypeScript and any tool of your choosing. We will ask you about your choice in the interview.

Please upload your automated tests to Git Hub and include instructions on how to install and run the pack.

Note: If you do not see the below snapshots, please use private browser history (Google chrome incognito or clear Sky.com Browser History / Cookies)

Acceptance Criteria

Feature: This feature will make sure that the shop page is navigable and usable.

Scenario: User navigates to shop page

Given I am on the home page

When I navigate to 'Deals'

Then the user should be on the <https://www.sky.com/deals> page

Note: You will have to handle the 'accept cookies' in your test.

Home page is <https://www.sky.com/>

It is better to clear the cookies for sky.com or clear your web page history.

Scenario: User sees tiles on the shop page

Given I am on the home page

When I try to sign in with invalid credentials

Then I should see a box with the text 'Create your My Sky password'

(See Snapshot A)

Scenario: User sees a list of deals on the deals page

Given I am on the '<https://www.sky.com/deals>' page

Then I see a list of deals with a price to it (see Snapshot B)

For example:

"£27.50", "£66.50", "£42.50"

Note: Please change the offer prices if the page shows something different. Assert only the first 3 offers.

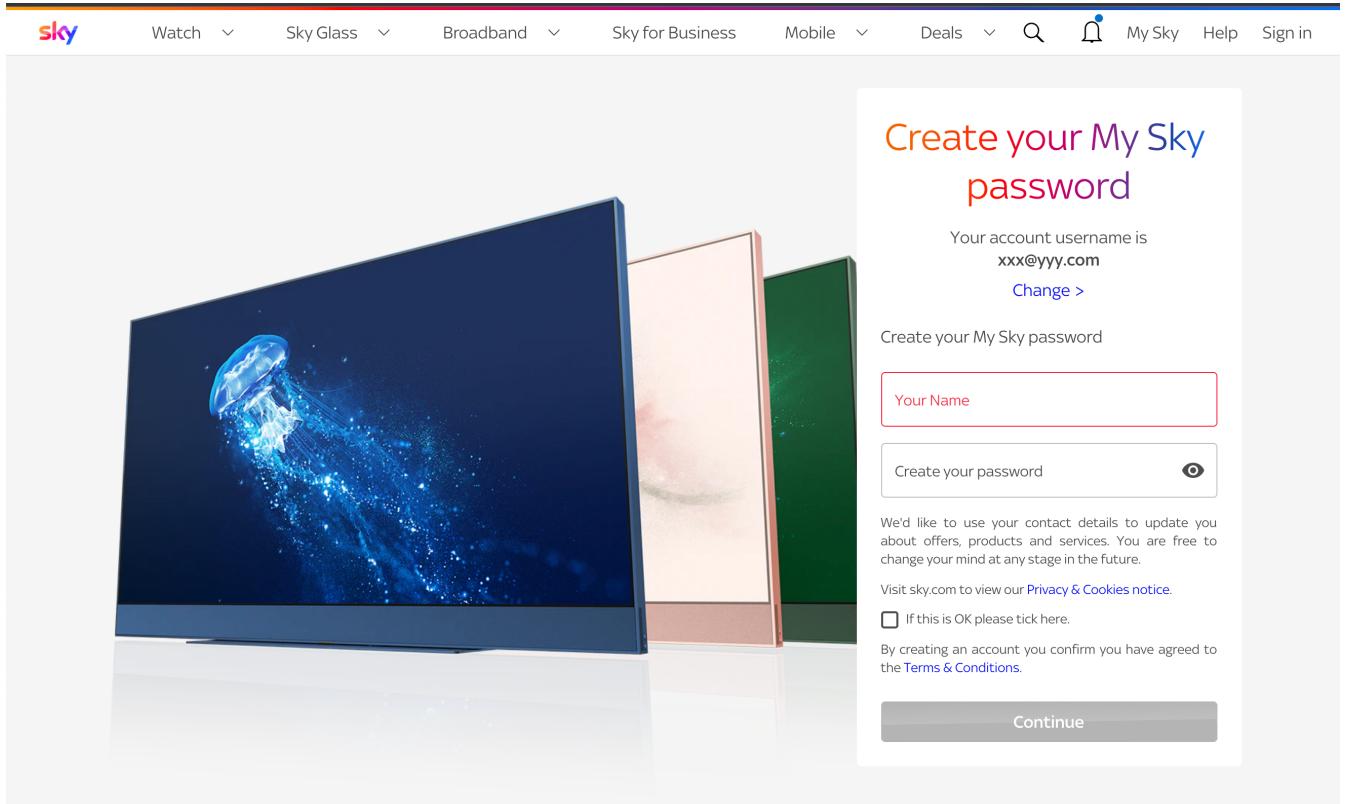

Feature: This feature will make the search show the results that are determined by editorial, as well as generic searches.

Scenario:

Given I am on the home page

When I search 'sky' in the search bar

Then I should see an editorial section. (Note: Editorial section is the section highlighted in Snapshot C)

Snapshot A

The screenshot shows the Sky homepage with a large image of a television screen displaying a jellyfish swimming in blue water. To the right of the TV, there is a form for creating a My Sky password. The form includes fields for 'Your Name' and 'Create your password', both with placeholder text. Below the form, there is a note about updating contact details and terms and conditions.
